This two-year degree map is designed for transfer students with an AA or AS degree, who are entering Brooklyn College with 60 transfer credits, and beginning the Psychology major with no previous Psychology courses. It is not meant to replace individualized advisement from the Psychology Department. Rather, it is meant to outline an ideal sequence of courses to help students customize their academic plan, and stay on track for graduation.

For courses requiring permission of the chairperson as a prerequisite, permission should be obtained before registration. The department Chair, with the approval of the Chair of the department's undergraduate curriculum committee, may allow substitutions for one or more of the requirements consistent with the educational goals of the program. A minimum of 15 credits of advanced Psychology courses must be completed at Brooklyn College with a grade of C- or higher in each course.

Students are strongly encouraged to meet with an advisor in the Psychology Department to discuss course selections and sequence in relation to their record and goals. For transfer students, recommendations for use of the degree map will vary based on their specific record and circumstances. Therefore, it is best to review your academic plan with an advisor on a regular basis. Also, please check Transfer Explorer (<https://explorer.cuny.edu/>) to review and confirm your course equivalencies.
