

Public Service Corps & America Reads

The Public Service Corps offers America Reads literacy tutoring internships at a host of sites throughout the five boroughs of New York City. Since 1997, more than 3,000 Public Service Corps interns have participated in the America Reads federal initiative designed to help young children learn to read independently and well in the early grades. In collaboration with NYC Administration for Children's Services, the NYC Department of Youth and Development, Queens Public Library, and select NYC Department of Education schools, the Public Service Corps has developed America Reads internships at over a hundred sites, including day care centers, schools libraries, and after-school programs serving thousands of our youngest learners.

Photo By: Michael Evangelou, PSC Intern

All Public Service Corps interns working as America Reads literacy tutors are fully funded by the Federal Work Study Program

NYC Public Service Corps

NYC Department of Citywide Administrative Services

212-386-0057/ psc@dcas.nyc.gov